

Snaggleteeth

Tuesday August 11th – We decided to pack up and move around the corner (5.13nm) to an anchorage called Prideaux Haven. A couple days ago Ava bit into an apple and cracked a tooth loose (baby tooth). Its been hanging by a thread the last couple days and she just can't seem to get it out. Finally, on our ride to Prideaux it came out. Ava was so happy to get rid of the snaggleteeth she was fighting the last few days.

This anchorage in Prideaux Haven is the most popular in Desolation Sound, and for good reason. Except for the large amount of boats always in there, its an incredible place to be. The water is warm and clear, there are all kinds of protected little places to anchor and nooks to explore with the kayak, dinghy or paddleboard. We found a perfect place to anchor and shore tied to a tree.

We all had a great time swimming in the water and exploring the little waterways. Skylar and I had fun on the rope swing that drops you into the water and Ava was even brave enough to do it too. We had a very relaxing day just playing in the water and laying in the sun!

Trip Log – 251.55nm

